

NO DISTURBANCE WHEN LIND GETS TO MEXICO CITY

Crowd Watches American Representative but No Demonstration Is Begun

IMPROVEMENT IN THE SITUATION

President and Advisers Believe They Can Force Huerta to Resign Presidency

HAVE ASSISTANCE FROM WITHIN

Influential Mexicans Will Aid Financial Pressure to Hasten Withdrawal of Dictator

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11, via Galveston.—John Lind, special adviser sent by President Wilson to the American embassy, today held a long conference at the embassy with Charles D'Aulaires O'Shaughnessy, Dr. William Bayard Hale, also representing President Wilson in Mexico, attended.

No Demonstration

At no time has there been any demonstration around Lind and apparently the people are but little interested in him or his doings. So far the Mexicans have learned nothing about Lind's mission. He has seen no one but the staff of the embassy.

The lack of interest displayed in the arrival of Lind was in a large measure due to the Huerta demonstration that was going on at the time the special envoy reached the capital. More than 1,000 students with rifles and banners marched through the streets, cheering the provisional president for his attitude on Lind's coming. Huerta authorized the demonstration and issued the rifles to the students.

Wilson Sees Improvement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Improvement of a decided character is seen by President Wilson in the Mexican situation. The last twenty-four hours, the president believes, have greatly cleared the air. Today the Huerta government in Mexico City is far more willing to adopt a conciliatory position in dealing with the United States. The grave danger is that some unforeseen outrage may be perpetrated against Americans.

The president was in an optimistic mood when he met the newspaper correspondents today in the regular conference. Lind is depended on to proceed in such a manner that he will not arouse resentment. He will make it plain that Huerta can never expect recognition. Influential Mexican circles, which realize this, will aid by bringing moral pressure to bear on provisional president to recognize the fact. It may be too much to expect Huerta to retire immediately. But because of the financial embarrassments of the government, he is expected to hasten the election so that a stable government which could be recognized can be formed.

To Probe Rebellion

Should Huerta prove more unreasonable than anticipated, and refuse to make any concessions of any kind, Lind will find out just what is behind the Carranza movement. The president is without any official information regarding the constitutional plans. Senator Sheppard of Texas has told him that 90 per cent of the people of Mexico are in sympathy with Carranza.

Although Senator Williams has declared that there is every indication of an original well financed movement to force this country into armed mediation with Mexico, the president does not agree with him that this is a formidable movement. He has told his callers that it is the most colossal and independently lying movement he has ever heard of.

15,000 CATHOLICS ARE AT CONVENTION

Brilliant Company of Prelates Including Cardinal Gibbons Gathers in Milwaukee

DIGNITARY CELEBRATES A MASS

Imposing Ceremony of Pontifical High Mass Gone Through Sunday by Cardinal

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 11.—Inspired by the presence of Cardinal Gibbons and a group of archbishops and other prominent ecclesiastical officials, forming the most distinguished and brilliant aggregation of Catholic churchmen ever gathered in Milwaukee at one time, the opening session of the American Federation of Catholic societies here today was interesting in the extreme.

15,000 Attend

With over 15,000 delegates and visitors in the city to attend the sessions of the convention and the various entertainments provided by the local Catholic organizations during the week, hotels and lodging houses are crowded and the streets gaily decorated with the white and gold colors of the associations continue the gala aspect which they held last week during the Perry week festival.

With problems of vital interest promised for discussion by the keenest minds in the Catholic hierarchy the attendance at the convention promises to be very large. Socialism and the attitude of the church toward that system of political and social philosophy, woman suffrage, the white slave crusade, divorce, home protection and the condition of Catholics in the American colonies and Mexico are some of the subjects scheduled for consideration.

On Wednesday the great spectacle of the week will occur when the parade of all of the visiting and local organizations takes place. Over 10,000 men will be in the line of march which will be divided into eight sections, each led by a band. Over 3,000 Knights of Columbus will participate in this feature of the week's program.

Cardinal at Mass

Cardinal Gibbons celebrated pontifical high mass at St. John's cathedral Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the presence of what was probably the most noted gathering of archbishops, bishops, priests and laymen in the history of the Catholic church in America.

When the procession, headed by twenty altar boys robed in red and white cassocks, left the residence of the Rev. Charles F. McBride at 9:55 a. m., hundreds of persons had gathered around the house and the cathedral to get a glimpse of the cardinal. Even a cold drizzling rain did not drive them away.

Prelates in March

Behind the altar boys were 200 of the most noted prelates in the Catholic church in America. When the head of the procession had reached the altar in the cathedral the cardinal was leaving the residence.

Following the prelates were those who were to assist Cardinal Gibbons at the mass: Assistant priest, Mr. Joseph Rainer; deacons of honor, the Rev. H. F. Fairbanks, the Rev. Anthony Adams and the Rev. O. M. Cay; deacon, the Rev. B. Celichowski; subdeacon, the Rev. James R. Ryan; master of ceremonies, the Rev. P. L. Johnson; first assistant, the Rev. Norbert Hoff; second assistant, the Rev. H. Healy.

Cardinal Gibbons, wearing a cardinal red cassock, which had a train carried by six altar boys, came last. The altar was decorated with gladiolas, palms and hundreds of electric lights and candles. American flags, shields of the American Federation of Catholic societies and yellow and white bunting were hung on the walls of the cathedral.

Cardinal Sings Mass

When the cardinal first sang in the mass, "Gloria in excelsis Deo," the worshippers were surprised to hear the strength of his voice which filled the entire edifice. All through the mass, which lasted more than an hour, his voice could be easily heard. After the mass the cardinal listened to the sermon which was preached by Archbishop James J. Keane of Dubuque, Ia.

Cardinal Gibbons attended a luncheon given in his honor at the St. John's cathedral auditorium at 12 o'clock on Sunday. It was attended by 250 prelates and priests and thirty laymen.

Discuss Economic Problems

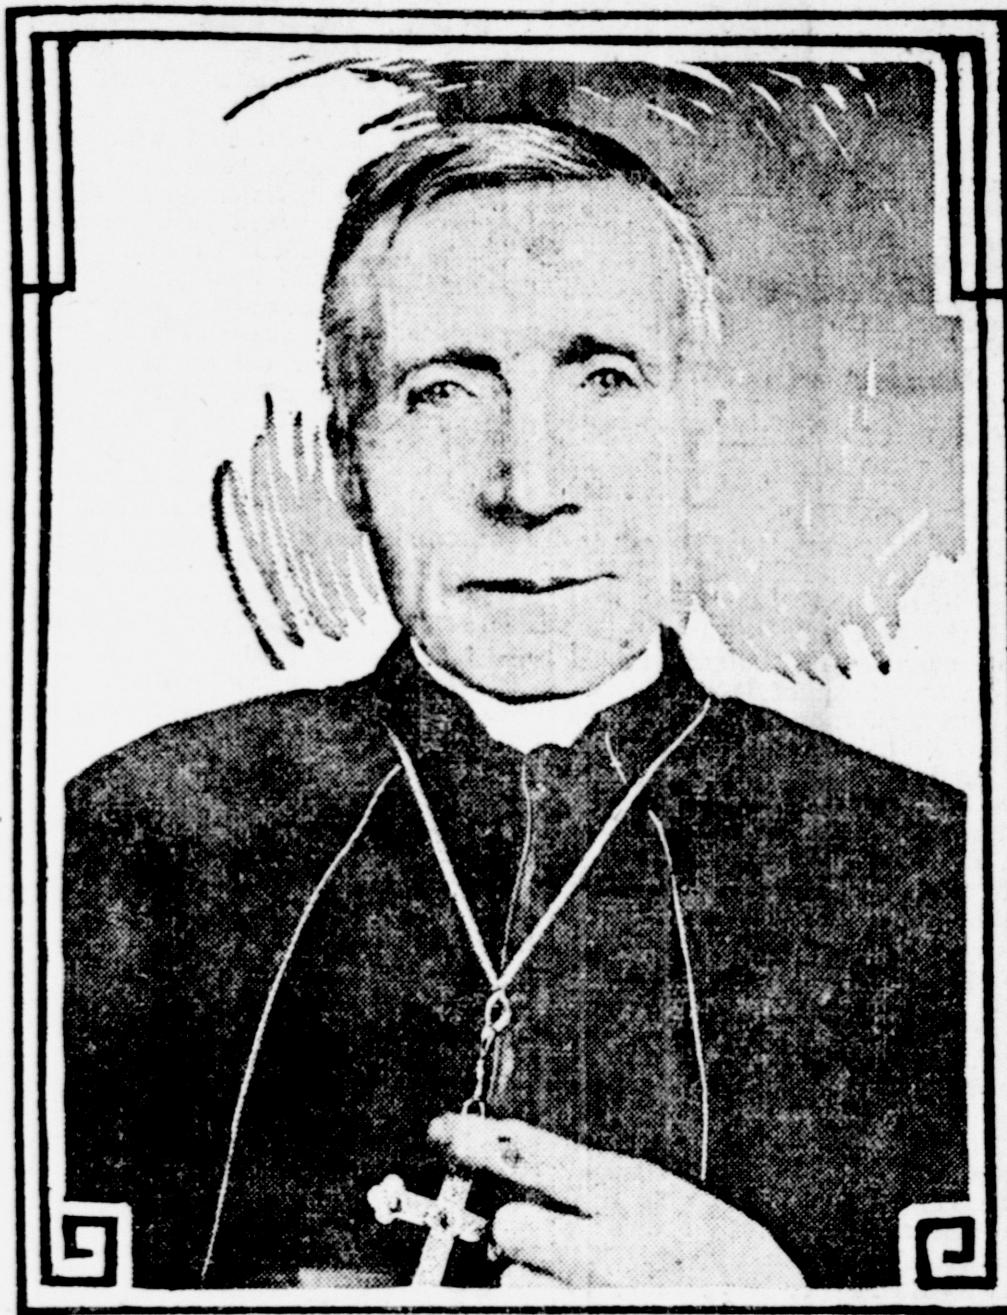

The condition of labor in the mines and the limitation of wealth as an economic remedy were the big questions today that were discussed by some of the leading Catholic thinkers of this country before the social service department of the American Federation of Catholic societies. The Rev. Jeter J. Muldoon presided over the conference.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the ladies of the convention inaugurated the social program of the session as a reception at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse.

For over two hours, yesterday Cardinal Gibbons and the visiting representatives of the Catholic hierarchy

TURKS REFUSE TO LEAVE HOLY CITY

Send Courteous Note to the Powers Declining to Give Up Adrianople

ALLIES FEAR THEY WILL ADVANCE

20,000 Turks Are Now in Thrace, Menacing Peace Recently Procured

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 11.—Turkey firmly declined to give up Adrianople, in a courteous note handed by the sublime porte tonight to the ambassadors of the powers. The note explains that the Turkish invasion of the Maritima zone, which is beyond the new frontier fixed by the treaty of London was forced by the atrocities of the Bulgarians.

With the Balkan peace treaty signed and out of the way, the powers today faced a more serious Turkish problem because of the treaty's provisions. The peace pact provides for the immediate demobilization of the Bulgarian army and the question now confronting the great powers is who will force the Turk to respect the new frontier fixed by the treaty of London.

A force of more than 200,000 Turks now is in Thrace and their activities menace the peace of the Balkans. Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece are apprehensive that the Ottomans will become more aggressive with the withdrawal of the Bulgarian forces.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that the porte's answer to the powers demand that Adrianople be evacuated and the new frontier respected, is evasive in terms.

CONFESSES KILLING HIS RANCH MATE

William J. Collins Admits He Murdered J. J. Jensen on Homestead in Alberta

CHARGE HE KILLED HIM FOR MONEY

Returned to Home in Brainer, Mo., with Money and Tale of Bunkhouse Fire

BRAYMER, Mo., Aug. 11.—William J. Collins today confessed that he murdered John P. Jensen, a former attorney here, on their homestead in Alberta, and fired their shack to cover up the crime, according to authorities here.

Collins and Benson left Braymer and took up homesteads in Alberta about May 1. Benson had about $3,000. Collins returned recently and reported that Benson had been burned to death in a fire destroying the bunkhouse. He declared that an oil stove exploded. Collins explained that he was after water and the shack was destroyed before he returned.

Members of the Masonic order, of which Benson belonged, did not believe Collins' story and learning Collins had been spending money freely, began an investigation. The charred body was exhumed here yesterday and a post mortem developed that his skull was crushed and that he had been shot through the heart.

Collins' arrest followed. Officers searched his home and found a wallet containing ninety $20 bills, and nine dollars in silver.

REPUBLICAN WHIP CALLS IN MEMBERS

Charles H. Burke, republican whip, has sent a "hurry" call to all G. O. P. members of both the senate and house to be in Washington not later than Aug. 15. Mr. John J. Esch received the call this morning and will leave for Washington Thursday.

SUBWAY AT MILL SHUT ROSE STREET CROSS CALEDONIA

This Is Believed to Be Plan Securing Serious Consideration by Commissioner Roemer

HEARINGS ARE ON TODAY

Diversity of Opinions on the North Side Crossing Controversy Presented to Commission

SCHU Z WANTS NO CHANGES

North Side Alderman Says Grade Crossings Would Be Cheaper to Everyone Concerned

A subway at Mill street with elevation of the railroad tracks there and a viaduct at Caledonia street with Rose street closed to traffic is believed to be the plan that is securing deep consideration from John H. Roemer, Madison, Wis., member of the railroad commission of Wisconsin.

Mr. Roemer is in the city today and is holding hearings on the north side controversy. At this morning's session a number of aldermen, the C. M. & St. P. Railway company, the street car company and other interested parties appeared to suggest their views on the matter.

While each man presented his arguments Mr. Roemer remained discreetly "mum."

It was not until Alderman H. J. Roth, representing the Twentieth ward, was speaking that the commissioner said anything that would intimate what his views on the matter were.

"What would you think of closing Rose street to traffic altogether and diverting that traffic to Mill and Caledonia streets?" he asked.

Each Man Has Plan

This chance question by the commissioner is receiving more than ordinary attention in official and railroad circles today and it is believed that the next order the commission makes in the case may be along these lines.

At this morning's hearing there was as many different "solutions" of the matter as there were people present.

Mr. George P. Bradish, city engineer, outlined his plan for the subway—all of which was attacked by Alderman P. W. Mahoney with as much fervor as Mr. Bradish displayed in presenting it.

Then Alderman Adam Kroner made a plea for haste in the matter and pointed out that the street car company should be compelled to cross over the viaduct. He was closely followed by Alderman Schultz of the north side, who had a simple solution of the whole matter.

Grade Crossing O. K.

"No viaducts, no subways—just plain, ordinary grade crossings everywhere—that will settle it all and cheaply for the city, too."

Cost, grades, elevations, high and low water were the principal morsels for discussion this morning and the views presented to the commission were practically the same that have been outlined time and again in The Tribune.

The commission adjourned at noon and the hearing was resumed at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when representatives of the street car company and railroad company were expected to appear.

Higbee Appears for City

Upon the resumption of the hearing this afternoon City Attorney J. E. Higbee outlined the city's attitude in the case. He declared for a rebuilding of the Rose street viaduct, the expense to be borne by the railroad, until some definite solution of the problem could be agreed upon.

He argued for a reappointment of the expense maintaining that the city could not afford the money necessary under the order of the commission. Alderman Mahoney disputed his claims as to the city's poor financial condition.

LAST CLUE TO MURDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A shoe-maker's iron lat, clotted with blood and with bits of hair clinging to it today formed the most tangible clue in the murder of the unidentified young woman whose body was found last night on a lonely woods path near Spuyten Duyvil creek. The hair matched that on the girl's head. The lat was found in the weeds not far from the spot where the body was lying.

Sulzer Starts Backfire to Blanket Effect of the Frawley Inquiry

HE DENIES STOCK TRANSACTIONS

Repudiates Practically All of Deals the Frawley Report Apparently Uncovered

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—With the legislators gathering for tonight's resumption of the special session to hear the report and recommendations of the Frawley committee investigating Governor Sulzer's campaign fund, John A. Hennessey was ready to begin the counter investigation authorized by Sulzer. Hennessey ostensibly will probe all of the state departments, but the real object of his inquiry is to show up Charles F. Murphy and his Tammany henchmen and thus blanket the disclosures of the Frawley committee.

For his first day's work Hennessey had summoned John H. Delaney, commissioner of efficiency and economy, and his deputy, Matthew Horgan. Horgan is acting as assistant to A. L. Richards, attorney for the Frawley committee, and Frawley has told him to ignore the Hennessey subpoena. Frawley also wrote a letter to Hennessey, advising him that he would not allow Mr. Horgan to testify before Hennessey.

After an all night conference regarding Frawley's attempt to block the Hennessey inquiry, Governor Sulzer early today issued a brief statement, denying practically all of the stock market dealings that the Frawley committee apparently brought to light last week in New York.

In attempting to tear the law from the statute books the big utility is following out an organized plan, decided upon some time ago, to fight physical connection laws wherever enacted. Suits similar to the La Crosse suit have been started in other states.

Violates Constitution

An their complaint the Bell people maintain that the order and the statutes purporting to authorize the same is an act depriving the company of property without due process of law. It is also contended that the physical connection statute is in violation of section 1 of article XIV of the amendment of the constitution of the United States and is in violation of sections 12, 13 and 22 of article 1 of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin.

The company further maintains that the commission's order does and "will affect interstate commerce and is and will be a regulation of interstate commerce" and therefore is in conflict with constitutional provisions.

The physical connection law passed the Wisconsin legislature at the 1911 session. It was on July 25 that Attorney Frank Winter, a La Crosse telephone subscriber, stepped to his phone and demanded to talk to a subscriber to the Bell phone over long distance. His request was refused and he immediately petitioned the rate commission for an order compelling the companies to furnish such connection. Hearings were held and in May, 1913, the commission so ordered.

At the time of the contest before the railroad commission the telephone concern was represented by scores of their best attorneys while Mr. Winter fought his own case.

BELL TELEPHONE PEOPLE PLAN TO BREAK STATUTE

Bring Suit Against Attorney Winter and Others in Effort to Secure Vacation of Order

ROEMER SAYS ORDER IS O. K.

Wisconsin Law the Best to Be Drafted Claims Commissioner in La Crosse Today

HITS THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE

This Is One of the Claims of Big Corporation in Legal Fight Started Here Today

The Bell Telephone "trust" today started suit against Attorney Frank Winter, the La Crosse Telephone company and the Railroad commission of Wisconsin to secure the vacation of the recent order of the commission compelling physical connection between Bell toll lines and independent telephone companies.

The company maintains that the Wisconsin physical connection law is in violation of the state and federal constitutions and interferes with interstate commerce and therefore is unlawful.

The order of the railroad commission, says the complaint of the big utility, is unlawful inasmuch as it deprives the Bell people of property without due process of law.

The attack on the Wisconsin statute is in reality an appeal from the order of the railroad commission compelling physical connection between the toll lines of the Bell company and various other lines in this state.

Roemer Wants Test

John H. Roemer, a member of the railroad commission, who is in the city today, declared that it is his opinion that the constitutionality of the law is unquestionable.

"If Wisconsin's physical connection law doesn't stand you can't draw one that will," said Mr. Roemer this morning. "I drew the decision in the La Crosse case anticipating that the matter would be taken into the courts and practically all of the questions to be decided will be found in that decision. We want a court test."

In attempting to tear the law from the statute books the big utility is following out an organized plan, decided upon some time ago, to fight physical connection laws wherever enacted. Suits similar to the La Crosse suit have been started in other states.

A Great Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

N. E. Calmes, of Marion, Ky., says: "You have the best medicine in the world, as I have given your Castoria to my babies from first to last."

TELLING THE NEWS

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Hello, the house!" Audrey shouted, setting her hands hollow about her mouth and leaning forward in saddle.

"Light, lady—if you can give references!" some one answered gayly from the ambush of rose thickets separating a green yard from an adorably tangled old garden.

Audrey frowned darkly. "H-m-m! I didn't know your other name was Impertinence!" she said loftily, then jingling her tin bucket loudly against the gate post, "if references were as plenty as I hope to find your cherries, you shouldn't have the ghost of one."

"As you will. Mere man is a down-trodden creature these days," the ambushed one answered plaintively. "This particular worm of the dust is, I fear, going to have things made very hard for him. You can't pick cherries without a ladder—can you? And the only ladder on the place is just now, off the place."

"On purpose—I am sure of that," Audrey pouted, her eyes dancing so it was a pity the ambushed could not see them. "But I don't mind in the least—my greatness lies in overseeing. I can always get more work done by egging on the rest. Besides—I know you are too gallant to see me sunburn myself and get my frock torn in a high cherry tree while you sit and watch me."

"I hate to climb down from such a pedestal," the hidden person retorted. "But you see—it's this way—I offered to give you cherries, right at your own door—easiest sort of thing to get them picked on shares. You were for coming over—can you deny it?"

"I can—but I won't—it is too hot, and besides I'm too amiable," Audrey flung back, then slid from saddle.

Evidently the ambushed person had a peephole. He came darting out, and was in time to steady her audaciously as she touched earth. "Awfully reckless!" he commented with a growling cadence.

"I turned your ankle—then I should have had to tote you in the house. By the way, Mother Molly is there already—came yesterday—where cherries abound there also, it appears, do women?"

"Injun giver! But I won't go away without a bucketful. Yes, even two bucketfuls and Toole's is bigger than mine," Audrey answered, smiling at him with infantile soft malice.

He shook his head, sighing deeply. "I fear, between you, you will drive me to matrimony," he said, taking the bucket, also the hand that held it, and moving toward the door.

It was a beautiful old colonial door, with a fanlight above it, and an absurd portico, fit for a pigeon house, jutting over. At their approach it flew wide. Mother Molly appeared in the frame of it, her mouth smiling, her eyes grave. Her nephew, Leland, the apple of her eye, deserved better of Fate, she thought, than a wife such as Audrey Clare.

Therefore, she had fought against his plan to keep bachelor's hall in the old Leland place that had come to him on the spindle side. Mother Molly herself was a Vincent, his father's sister, and his own abject worshiper since the day he was born.

She had picked the very wife for him—Sarah Minor Tabb—whose names proclaimed the irreproachability of her pedigree. Audrey was Irish—her father had seemed a gentleman—but happy-go-lucky—why! that way, he had been quite equal to the dardies. Audrey was all very well—very well indeed for a girl who had raised herself, as it were. But not the person to be trusted with Leland and Vincent silver, to say nothing of diamonds and old lace.

She cared so little for things—clothes especially. Sarah Minor treasured fine fabrics—they were to her as apples of gold in pictures of silver. Indeed she treasured them to such an extent, if she wore them it was with such reservations against marrying them they often made her a figure of fun. Reckless Audrey contrariwise cut and snipped and draped her cotton frocks or her cheap silks, or inexpensive tissues until she made herself a picture—even Mother Molly could not deny that.

"Yes, there are some cherries left. A good many indeed. And I'm quite through," she said, guardedly, shaking Audrey's hand. "I got up at day-break—had my fruit all seeded and down in sugar—ready for anything—you know it must stand over night, even for wine. So now I'm ready to hear all the news you can tell me. Sarah Minor is coming in a little while—so I won't let you start gossiping until she is here."

"Oho! Perfidious person!" Audrey pretended to whisper, shaking a tragic finger in Leland's face. "You invite me to my eclipse—knowing as well as I do, I can't hold a candle to Miss Sarah Minor in anything—least of all in telling the news."

The last words burned her. She could have bitten her tongue for speaking them. They were deadly true—but how they sounded. She wanted to run away, to go straight home, cherryless, loverless—to let Mother Molly and Sarah Minor have Leland in peace, but she must go with the honors of war. With her most winning smile, she ran to the telephone, called up a number and spoke law and rapidly as soon as she was answered.

"Praise my after-thought—once," she said gayly to Leland. "I had forgotten—quite—this was Martha Marshall's day. She says she is just starting. I shall get home barely in time to meet her."

"Messing things—as usual," Leland interrupted. "Martha Marshall is coming here. Didn't she tell you that?"

"Then she's a wretch—same as you are," Audrey protested. "I hate folks who break engagements—even myself."

"Yes, I know—but there's one engagement I shan't let you break. It will have to be made, therefore, in presence of a witness," Leland broke in, tweaking her ear very gently. "Mother Molly is the witness we need," he added, the least shake creeping into his voice. "Take hands with me before her, honey, and promise to make a man of me. You can—if it's in me—and I believe it is."

"Leland!—You—you—outrage!" Audrey gasped. "You must think I'm a reform school," she ran on breathlessly.

He shook his head, took both her hands in his and said tensely, "No need to play with me longer darling—now I know you love me!"

"Leland! I am ashamed of you! To say such a thing to a young lady in your own house!" Mother Molly shrieked. "To her face—and mine! Oh! it's—it's too dreadful!"

"What's too dreadful, Mother Molly?" Sarah Minor peeped. She had a fine high voice which sounded odd, coming from a very plump chest.

Audrey tried to free her hands, but Leland held them gently but firmly. "We are doing murder—to the conventions," he said. "Won't you help, like the good fellow you are?"

"I—don't know—I—don't understand!" Sarah Minor peeped.

Leland let go Audrey's hands, stood very straight and lifted his head, a fine red in either cheek. "I've loved Audrey all my life," he said. "But I never knew she loved me the same until I saw her show herself jealous of you. We know—you and I—she has not need to be—we are the best of friends—and you will get the better man you deserve. Tell her you've known all along how it was with me—"

After all, Sarah Minor was a good sort. She looked at the pair, drew their hands together and said, "Oh, you go 'long, Leland! You know I am the worst hand to tell folks' news."

SICKLES SPOILS SPARTA

ONALASKA, Wis., Aug. 11.—(Special.)—Onalaska walloped Sparta Sunday afternoon to the tune of 8 to 0. Sickles, Onalaska's star Indian pitcher, had the Spartans completely at his mercy at all stages of the game, striking out 17 men, allowing but one scratch hit and only walking one man.

Onalaska played errorless ball behind Sickles while the Spartans chalked up seven. Outside of Sickles' pitching, E. Christopherson's home run, was the feature of the game, the wallop being a long drive to left field. Score: R H E

Daddy's Bedtime

How the Story— Little Birds
Keep Clean.

SOMETIMES Jack thought his mother was too particular about the way he looked in vacation time. Once a day he said was often enough for a little boy to wash his face and hands. Mother did not agree with him.

"Nobody sees me," Jack grumbled one evening as he and Evelyn came in to where daddy was sitting.

"Sees you?" daddy inquired. When he heard Jack was grumbling because he had to wash before going to bed he said: "Why, mother sees you, Evelyn sees you and I see you. If you look in the glass you will yourself see how nice you look. Why, even the little birds clean up before they go to sleep."

"You've never seen them? Well, just watch the canary some day and see him combing his hair, washing his face and cleaning his feathers."

"First with his bill he will pick and shake at the feathers until he has got all the dirt out of them. Then he will gently pick and pat into place every little quill and feather."

"Yes, our little bird combs his hair. Of course he has no nice brush and comb as little boys and girls have, but the sharp claws on his little feet do just as well. With them he combs down every little feather in his crest and dresses his head as carefully as any hairdresser could do."

"If he thinks his face is not all it should be he rubs it against the wires of his cage or on his perch. If his feet are soiled he cleans them off with his bill."

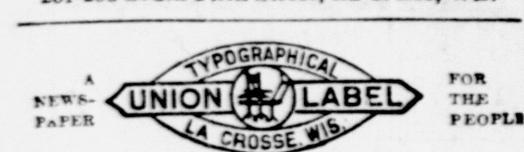

"This is what I should call the little bird's dry bath. He takes a tubbing every morning when the little china bird bathtub is freshly filled with water and placed in his cage."

"You know how he loves to dip and splutter about in it. Sometimes he shakes the water out of his wings right in the face of whoever may be standing near him. Perhaps he does not wish any one to watch him when he makes his toilet. After he has washed and shaken out his feathers and has combed and picked them out till he is as yellow and fluffy as a sponge cake he will burst into song."

"We know from this that Dicky enjoys his bath. Wild birds are fond of bathing too. Out in the woods, where there are little brooks or quiet little pools, you will sometimes come upon a little flock of them—chattering and splashing on the edge of the water. Some people who like the birds put out big dishes on their lawns and fill them with water. Then they have the amusement of watching the birds taking their baths on the lawns."

IN THE CAUSE OF JUSTICE

The supreme court of Alabama has come into national attention through the announcement that it will reverse no more decisions on grounds, purely technical. This ruling by a state supreme court, which all subordinate courts in Alabama are bound to follow, provides that no case shall be reversed for a technical error unless it is shown affirmatively that the whole cause of the defendant has been injured thereby. This is a stand which all laymen will be ready to applaud, and it is also one with which lawyers who respect their profession need have no quarrel. As officers of the court, lawyers are bound to seek justice. So by the same token is the court. It is not justice when technicalities or the mistakes of lawyers make against a righteous verdict.

What the supreme court of Alabama promises is that technical discrepancies shall not prevent the administration in each case of substantial justice. The step it has taken is another and conspicuous instance of the growing disposition of the courts to relax the hide-bound rules and narrow practice of interpretation in favor of the idea that the paramount duty is to do justice in every case. The substance of that is the thing sought for, and the exercise of judicial discretion may be profitably employed in reaching it.

The example set by the Alabama supreme court is one that might profitably be followed by the courts of other states and we firmly believe that all courts must eventually come to it. The large share of the criticism that has been directed toward all the courts in the last few years has been the result of the practice of literally hiding behind technicalities to the detriment of justice. The courts are in existence for the one purpose of dispensing justice through the laymen are sometimes inclined to believe otherwise when justice is deliberately defeated to meet a point of law.

UNCLE SAM'S CONSCIENCE FUND

There is one place in the federal establishment at Washington where a contrite sinner may make open confession and amend without the slightest danger of prosecution. It was established by President Madison's administration, in 1811, when the first contribution of $5 was received by the government as "conscience money." Since then the fund has grown to nearly half a million dollars. It is surrounded by the treasury officials with a certain degree of sacredness. Usually the penitent sends his contribution anonymously, but if he signs his name his secret is locked in the archives of the government.

According to reports from Washington, fewer penitents confessed during the fiscal year 1913 than for many years. The conscience fund received during the 12 months ending June 30, totaled only $2,814.44, the lowest since 1901, and comparable with 190 years' average of $4,200. While the report is the only official index to scruples, no treasury official attempts to explain the decrease in restitution of money received from the government by fraud or error. Perhaps the high cost of living has caused the penitent to postpone making amends until a more favorable time but this is not in line with the established methods, for self-denial is generally supposed to be exercised by the penitent.

Perhaps the coming year will see a flood of penitents. Following the low tide in 1901, the fund grew surprisingly during 1902—$35,868 was added to it, a record for a year.

There may be a wave of retribution now and some day, perhaps, the government will erect a peace temple with money from the fund.

THE RAILROADS AND THE MAILS

It is not difficult to agree with the railroads of the country in their complaint over the government's method of paying them for carrying the mails. Once every four years the postoffice department orders the weighing of the mails for a certain brief period of time and the daily average weight during this period forms the basis of pay for the railroads for the following four years. Uncle Sam's mail business is constantly increasing and never declining yet the increase that comes after the weight schedule is fixed must be carried free by the railroads until the next readjustment.

With the introduction of the parcel post the first of the present year, the government provided that five per cent should be added to the weight schedule to make provision for the increasing business. The roads claim the growth of this business has already brought the percentage of increase considerably above the additional compensation. When the recent ruling of the postmaster general goes into effect on August 15th, it is expected that there will be another considerable increase in the quantity of mail to be carried.

To make the matter more unsatisfactory to the railroads, practically all of the business will be taken from the express companies, who at the present time are paying the railroads, nearly fifty per cent of the carrying cost. Thus, this revenue will be cut off entirely for a time and will never reach the figure of proportionate compensation received through the express companies. While this carries a hint of too fat profits in the past, it unquestionably is an element for consideration in the re-adjustment of railroad compensation.

It is the contention of the railroads that the government should weigh the mails once each year instead of each four years. The law says that they shall weigh at least once in four years and the postoffice department has construed it to mean that they shall not be weighed oftener than every four years. The railroads do not agree with this and all of them are agreed to make a united protest.

Though on the surface it has not appeared to be the fact, it is the general impression that a very large share of the objection to the carrying out of Postmaster General Burleson's recent order for expanding the parcel post service has come indirectly from the railroads and their entire opposition comes because they see a material decrease in their revenue through the change.

Whatever the public attitude has been toward the railroads it never has been intentionally unfair but it is manifestly unfair to expect the railroads to sell their services to the government upon a basis of valuation not as good as a shrewd guess. No matter whether the roads are under-paid or over-paid, there should be a fair and accurate measure of their services.

Thirty-four Chicago persons are missing. Perhaps they are only waiting for one of the surface cars to get them home.

Having a new motorcar Mrs. Pankhurst can do more damage now than ever before.

No Cause for Complaint

A western politician running for office was very much incensed at certain remarks which had been made about him by the leading paper of the town. He burst into the editorial room like a dynamite bomb and exclaimed: "You are telling lies about me in your paper, and you know it!"

"You have no cause for complaint," said the editor coolly. "What in the world would you do if we told the truth about you?"

His Identification Card

While a building was in process of construction two of the toilers became engaged in a violent quarrel. So violent was it that the police were called in and the offenders taken before a magistrate. Both of the men were sober and industrious and good workmen; this, according to the testimony of the foreman in charge of their work, who had followed in hopes of being able to intercede for them.

The magistrate asked, in astonishment, the cause of the quarrel. It seemed that one man had accused the other of stealing his coat.

"And I can prove it, too," added the man.

"How?" said the magistrate.

"I always keep my card in the pocket," said the man.

The policemen were directed to search the garment. But they found absolutely nothing.

"Gimme my coat," said the workman. It was handed to him. He took two dried peas out of the pockets and held them up triumphantly. "P. P. Peter Powell. That's me name. Them's my card."

He got his coat.

By the Stems

Henry was very proud of the new kittens and went for them to show them to visitors. His mother heard them coming along the hall, and, alarmed at the noise of the procession, called out:

"Don't hurt the kittens, Henry."

"No, mother," came the reassuring answer. "I'm carrying them very carefully by the stems."

Vacation Time

"My wife's gone to the country—hooray! hooray!" The success of that song was due to its profound truth, its profound truth to marriage and to human nature.

The speaker was DeWolf Hopper, the noted comedian. He continued, mopping his brow:

"It is an undoubted fact that, the first day or two of his family's departure for mountains or seaside, the most humdrum of men—the fastest, baldest, soberest of men—shout in their hearts, 'My wife's gone to the country—hooray! hooray!'"

"And the wives realize this. And they realize the danger of it."

"I was talking one August afternoon to a matron on a breezy Narragansett piazza."

"Aha, madam," I said, "here you are, enjoying the salt air while your hard working husband is chained to his desk in the city."

"Chained to his desk, indeed!" said the matron. "Ah, if he only could be, I'd have some peace of mind."

Another seance. John is speaking, Miss Estrilla answering.

"Ah, I really love you. But I find it hard to forgive."

"Don't you understand, John, that it wasn't revenge? It was duty."

"I know. There is much that I do not understand, but I do understand that. In the flesh, I was always attracted by the glitter of jewels."

This was a lead into territory only partially explored. And the road opened.

"I think there were two parts of you, John. But, oh, the better part loved me, did it not?"

"Yes, loved you truly, little lady."

"John, if you had stolen them then outright—had to use my love!"

"I am going. I am not strong enough yet to endure reproach."

"Oh, I will not reproach you again. You must forgive. You know how little you have to forgive. Wait, John, wait!"

John is speaking again; Miss Estrilla replies:

"They give me new strength every day. But this poor ignorant woman is weakening. Why did you try to get them as you did?"

"What was I to do when I found I had not claim under the law? What was I to do after you wrote me that letter?"

"That happened before I passed out. I could not see you then. And I have not seen any one clearly. I am not like the better spirits. My soul was not good when it left the flesh. But I think you came to New York just to get the jewels."

(This was a venture on Rosalie's part; still there were ways of retrieving the mistake if her guess was wrong.)

"Yes. It was my plan, not Juan's. I have been more foolish than he. Every day I spent in the room above you I was afraid you would discover me. Yet when I thought of you down there—I loved you still! But my eyes were really sick. It was because I cried so much—but I promised not to reproach you."

"Little lady—I was had, but I loved you. I think if I had seen you, I would have restored them."

"Oh, John! That is hardest of all! If you had—you might have died—but we would have been saved this—and your conscience would have been right. And, John, I can not die and join you now—I dare not—because it would be wrong—and because of Juan!"

Rosalie noted how the name of Juan came in again. For caution, she must veer away from that lead at present.

"I think that I felt you near me at times."

"Did you, John? Did you know I was in your room once when you were asleep. Do you remember how you slept through the fire at home? That was why I dared. There was light on your face. I wanted to kiss it."

"If you had—and wakened me!"

"If I had—if I only had!" Miss Estrilla wept bitterly; the voice of John answered with caressing reassuring words.

"But John, why can you not forgive? Don't you know all?" continued Miss Estrilla when she had control of her voice.

"Not all. We do not wake to the spirit at once. After the shock, we are in a mist for a time. I knew nothing until I was looking down on the people who surrounded my body—a long time after. Then there were mists and dark spots. I saw one of the jewels on the floorbeside the door. I could not see you—nor Juan. I must know—this is hard—I am growing weak."

"Wait, John, wait!" cried Miss Estrilla, for the first time losing control of herself. "John! Come back! You must come back! I've something to tell you that's killing me!" John, you must know that he didn't mean to do it!"

With all the will-power that she had, Rosalie kept herself from the slightest movement when she heard that simple starting pronoun, "he."

It was time to close the seance. She summoned Laughing-Eyes, who bade Miss Estrilla good-by in a weak, failing tone; she settled into her concluding "trance."

In the last two sittings, Rosalie had been awakening from trance of her own record. Now, she slumbered on for two or three minutes before she let her eyes flutter open; her face resume expression.

Miss Estrilla had controlled her weeping. To Rosalie's cheerful, "Well, was I out long?" she returned no answer. Rosalie looked at her sharply.

"I'm afraid you shouldn't do this any more—in your state of nerves," she said. "Only reason I've kept it up was because it seemed to be doing you so much good. But today you look all tuckered out. An' me—a wet rag is cast-iron beside my feeling this minute. Tell me—was it long after I stopped talking before I woke up?"

"No. It was shorter than ever before."

"M-hm! Well, those that know me better than I know myself have watched my trances. They say that when I wake up soon after the spirit goes, it means just one thing—it seems I'm running down. This mediumship is like a bucket in the rain. You pour out the water, an' you've got to wait a while for the bucket to fill again. When I begun sittin' with you, I had more in me than I thought. Fact is, I'd just begun to overflow, which is why I couldn't stop that first trance from

In your hand you hold a five-cent piece.

Right at the grocer's hand is a moisture-proof package of Uneeda Biscuit. He hands you the package—you hand him the coin. A trifling transaction?

No! A remarkable one—for you have spent the smallest sum that will buy a package of good food; and the grocer has sold you the most nutritious food made from flour—as clean and crisp and delicious as it was when it came from the oven.

comin'. But now it's about spilled out. Trance ain't a relief any longer. It's been a strain on me for three sittings, an' now that it's beginnin' to tell on you, we'd both better stop it, I guess."

But Miss Estrilla raised her eye-shade; and Rosalie saw that she was weeping again. "Oh, just another!" she pleaded. "Couldn't you, Mrs. Le Grange. There was something more I wanted to ask. Something," she went on, "which would seem trivial to you. But to me—"

"Now, my dear," interrupted Rosalie, "I don't want to know anything about what the spirits are saying to you. That's your secret."

She appeared to hesitate over a decision. "Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I've probably got just about come mottin' in me, an' then I'll be through. Sometimes, by sort of reaching out toward the spirit on the night before—I can't make you understand, I guess, you not being mediumistic—I can make the trance stronger—bring more, they tell me. I'll get in touch with the spirit tonight, an' I'll set with you tomorrow for the last time this spell. Then I must quit. I'm keepin' a boarding-house, not practicin' professional."

"I'm very grateful," said Miss Estrilla, "more grateful than you can ever understand."

"I know you are. That's why I'm doing this, I suppose," said Rosalie. "There ain't any too much gratitude in this world. Why, I feel as weak as water—an' I must look after the ironin' too," she added as she moved listlessly toward the door.

RACER IS SPILLED BUT NOT INJURED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 11.—"Speedy" Ferch, a local motorcycle racer, who fell from his machine last evening at the local motordrome and slid a quarter of the distance around the saucer at a speed estimated at ninety miles an hour is none the worse for the experience this morning.

In the final five miles Ferch claims that Bugerman of Denver cut in ahead of him throwing him from his machine. "Speedy" smoked about about the saucer on his back, but arose unhurt.

Funeral services were held Sunday from her late home and from the Lutheran church at Whalen, Rev. Saevig conducting the rites.

The famous Zatz Zams, the original Mexican knife throwers, known as the last of the Aztec Indians of Old Mexico, have been secured at a good deal of expense for the annual fall festival to be held at Rushford, October 1, 2 and 3. The committee in charge of this part of the festival have been very fortunate in securing "attractions that will attract" and if the weather man (who last year disappointed us by sending rain) will just forget his grudge and give us half a chance, we are going to give the city an exhibition of fun, frolic and enterprise that the whole country will sit up and take notice and want to know just how we did it. Don't think for a minute that the "Zatz Zams" are to be the only free attraction, for there is going to be "something doing every bit of the time and then some."

WEATHER SPOILS BOATERS' PICNIC

Dark Skies Discourage All but Forty of Copeland Park Motor-boatists

The Copeland Park Motor Boat club held their annual picnic yesterday at Bridge of Sky. Owing to the dark aspect of sky early in the morning only ten boats lined up at the foot of the park at 8:30 for the parade, which wound its way down to the Mississippi and up to the grounds with not a soul looking on. Later in the morning a few more members straggled along, making about forty in attendance.

As scheduled George Mossholder and John Close started the combination bouillon as soon as the boats landed. A ball game was participated in by members of the club.

Comodore Charles Simcox and Vice Comodore William Fladlein of the club were present and attended to the entertainments of the day. The flotilla left the grounds for home at 6 o'clock.

CARDS LICK MIDWAY

In a fast and exciting game the Cardinals defeated the Midway ball team yesterday afternoon by a score of 6 to 4. The count stood 4 to 0 until the sixth inning, when Kloss got a bingle over second that started the rally for the local boys. Redmonds and Williams for the Cardinals and Tanke and Fuchs for Midway made up the batteries.

Humor Not Her Strong Point.

When a Willesden (Eng.) rate-collector told the magistrate that a defaulter laughed at him, the defendant—a woman—retorted: "Quite untrue. I never, in any circumstances, laugh."

TOM MANN, BRITISH AGITATOR, HERE TO URGE SYNDICALISM ON U. S. LABOR MEN

Tom Mann.

Tom Mann, the most dynamic if not the most potential force in the labor movement in Great Britain, has come to America to preach syndicalism.

Mann's dominating personality has impressed itself upon labor organizations in nearly every English-speaking corner of the earth. He has led more strikes and kicked up more industrial strife than any other living man. Now he is in America to teach the doctrine of militancy both to men and women. Capital uses every means at its command to fight labor, he says; then why shouldn't labor use every means at its command to fight capital?

NEAR SOLUTION OF YEARS OLD CRIME

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.—With warrants out for two men charging complicity in the slaying of John Blevins, former city treasurer of Newcastle, Pa., who was beaten to death in his office one night fourteen years ago. The crime was believed to be near a solution today.

A woman, tortured by her conscience, is said to have given the detectives the clue, admitting that she shared the crime plotted.

An audit of Blevins' account after the murder disclosed him to be about $48,000 short. Certain notes believed to have been in his possession were missing. It was believed by the police that the murder was committed principally to obtain possession of these notes, which, it was rumored, were given him by prominent politicians.

Information has already been received which will take the committee into other cities. It is said the committee will need to expend but a small portion of the $10,000 appropriation allowed. The members are: Senator Howard Teasdale, Sparta; Victor Linley, Superior; and Robert W. Monk, Neillsville; Assemblymen J. W. Bingham, Friendship; James Dolan, Platteville; and Carl Minkley, Milwaukee.

TRIED TO CONTROL U. S. COMMISSION

Emery Admits the N. A. M. Tried to Put Anti-Labor Men on Industrial Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—A frank statement that the National Association of Manufacturers used every effort to control the national industrial commission in 1912 by repeatedly advocating appointment of men disapproving the principles advocated by labor unions, was made before the senate lobbying investigating committee today.

James A. Emery, Washington counsel for the N. A. M., swore that efforts were made to have anti-labor men fill at least three and possibly six of the nine positions on the commission.

Among candidates advocated by the N. A. M., Emery said, were Senators Smoot and Sutherland, of Utah; Representative Moon of Pennsylvania; F. C. Schwedtman of St. Louis; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler; Lawrence Laughlin of Chicago; A. B. Farquhar of New York; John Trix of Detroit, and James Bryce of Battle Creek, Mich.

Questioned by Senator Reed, Emery also said that the N. A. M. took active part in various political campaigns in the interest of congressional men seeking re-election. He denied that the N. A. M. desired to place any candidate under obligation by thus aiding him.

William Atchison, proprietor of the Law Hotel, today denied a story to the effect that his automobile was wrecked in a collision at Twelfth street and Mormon Coulee road on Thursday night.

I.W.W. RIOTS STIR CITIZENS OF MINOT

Ninety Are in Jail and the Townsman Arm to Control the Situation

MINOT, N. D., Aug. 11.—Nearly ninety members of the Industrial Workers of the World are in jail here this morning and the local authorities have lost all control of the situation, following street rioting which began Saturday night when citizens threw rotten eggs at Jack Law, an I. W. W. speaker and his followers.

Practically the entire male population of this place is now armed and the excitement has reached such a pitch that shooting may break out any moment.

An army of Industrial Workers is on the way here from St. Paul and Minneapolis, following many messages sent out by the local labor leaders, appealing for assistance.

Citizens became incensed when I. W. W. speakers insulted the American flag and prominent residents of this city. Many have planned to run the I. W. W.'s out of town.

RATE COMMISSION FIXES STANDARDS

New Rules for Gas and Electric Service Ordered; Provide for True Meters

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 11.—(Special.)—New standards for gas and electric service in Wisconsin were ordered by the Wisconsin railroad commission today, the revised set of rules superseding those established July 24, 1908. The new standards follow a public hearing given by the commission at Milwaukee on April 22, 1913, which was well attended by the representatives of municipalities, gas and electric utilities, technical societies and journals, and of the bureau of standards at Washington. The new rules chiefly concern accuracy of gas and electricity meters.

The suggested rules were prepared by members of the engineering staff of the railroad commission based on a thorough study of the subject covering the five years which have elapsed since issuing the original order establishing standards of service.

Where the consumer is not satisfied with the company's test, provision is made for referee tests to be made by an inspector sent by the commission. Fees for this test range from 2 to $8.

There is a rule on interruptions. To avoid interruptions in service, working on lines or equipments must be done at a time when it will cause the least inconvenience to the consumers, and those most seriously affected by such interruptions shall if possible be notified in advance.

CROSS CONTINENT ON MOTORCYCLE

Los Angeles Man with His Wife on Tour to New York Stop Here Over Sunday

With the entire machine covered with mud from the poor roads which they have traveled, La Roy Snodgrass and wife, 1249 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal., arrived in La Crosse Saturday afternoon on a motorcycle trip from the western coast to New York city. Signs, such as "New York or Bust," "From Coast to Coast," and others, show plainly the determination of Mr. and Mrs. Snodgrass to reach the nation's metropolis.

Mr. Snodgrass and his wife are making the trip on a motorcycle equipped with a side carrier. Starting from Los Angeles on May 24, they have up to this time traveled a total of 3,700 miles, or an average of about 48 miles per day. Mr. and Mrs. Snodgrass remained in the city over Sunday and they started out for the east this morning. They expect to cover the remaining 1,500 miles to New York in time to arrive there by September 1.

The party has carried a complete camping outfit, including a tent and cooking utensils, with them ever since leaving their home. Up to the time they arrived in La Crosse they camped every day and cooked all their own meals as through the west places to eat were scarce. However, during the remainder of the trip they do not intend to cook their own meals, but will camp all the way.

When they reach New York city Mr. and Mrs. Snodgrass will have traveled approximately 5,200 miles on the motorcycle. Thus far they have encountered no serious trouble with the machine and they are confident of reaching their destination by September 1.

$1,000 WEBB CUP ON DISPLAY IN CITY

The free for all championship trophy of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, one of the handiest racing trophies in America, is on display in La Crosse for a few days in the window of the Open Exhaust office at 114 North Fifth street.

This trophy is known as the Webb cup and was donated by Thomas Webb of Peoria in 1910. It is valued at $1,000, stands over two feet high and is made of solid silver. It was first won in 1910 by the "Red Top," owned by Bob Hughey of Bellevue, Iowa; in 1911 by Disturber II, owned by James A. Pugh of Chicago, and last year by Davenport by Baby Reliance III, owned by John J. Ryan of Algonac, Mich.

The cup is a perpetual challenge trophy and was expressed by Mr. Ryan to W. V. Kidder, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, to be sent on in a few days to Keokuk, Iowa, where it will be raced for this month by such boats as Ankle Deep, Peter Pan V, Kitty Hawk V, Speed Demon Reliance, Disturber III, Barnacle, Hazel II, and others which have been gaining championship honors throughout the country during the present season, and some of which will probably represent America in the international races in England September 15.

ANTI-ALIEN LAND LAW IS IN EFFECT

California Measure Goes Into Effect Today Without Diplomatic Ripple

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Although the California anti-alien land ownership law, which when under consideration threatened to become a serious question between this government and Japan, went into effect today, no official notice was taken of it here. It is still a matter for diplomatic correspondence between Japan and the United States. An official note, the fourth exchanged, is now being prepared at the Japanese embassy for transmission to Secretary of State Bryan. It upholds again the Japanese contention that the measure is a violation of the treaty rights of the Nipponese.

ARREST TWO FOR LOGUE'S MURDER

Woman Betrays Paramour and Police Believe They Are Near Solution of Mystery

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Harold Schneider, vaudeville singer, and "Johnny" Faith, an underworld character, were today formally charged with the murder of Joseph H. Logue, a wealthy diamond merchant, who was slain in his offices in the McVicker Theater building eight months ago under circumstances that baffled the police.

A woman's betrayal of her alleged paramour caused the arrest of Schneider and Faith. Assistant State's Attorney Johnson declared he was positive that one of the men actually did the killing.

The woman was May McMullen. According to Johnson she detailed Faith's actions during the week preceding the murder because he refused to marry her after she had given birth to a child.

The Logue murder was one of the most difficult of solution in Chicago's crime history. Logue was shot and beaten to death and his safe robbed while thousands of Christmas holiday shoppers were passing his office at the lunch hour in December, 1912.

ARREST TWO FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

Country Maid Near-Victim of Assault by Married Man Claim Police Today

George Race, aged 32, a married man of Portage, Wis., and Joe Cook, a railroad man, are being held at the central police station following an alleged attempt assault upon Cora Eastern, aged 19, a girl traveling from the Dakotas, to her home in Spring Grove, Minn.

The alleged attempt took place Friday night at the American House restaurant on Mill street, where the girl, who had missed her train to Minnesota, had taken a room for the night.

According to Chief of Police John Webber the girl, in many respects an unsophisticated country product, got off at the north side instead of coming through to South La Crosse Friday. She asked young men on the platform where she could get a room and they directed her to the American restaurant run by Alec McCann on Mill street. She went there, had supper and retired for the night.

It is alleged that Race and Cook were at the depot and heard her inquiries. They, it is claimed, followed her to the hotel and went to Cook's room, which chanced to be across the hall from the one occupied by the girl.

According to the girl's story someone rapped, after she was asleep, and sought admittance. She refused. The next she knew a man, whom she claims to be Race, came over the transom.

A struggle followed during which other occupants of the hotel were aroused. To escape, the girl, Race demanded to know where the key was. She pointed to the dresser and in his effort to locate it Race hit a match. The match flare furnished her the opportunity to see his face and she afterwards identified him.

Cook claims he had no knowledge of the affair, although the police maintain he boosted Race over the transom and into the room.

Race was arrested later at his room at the Allen house and Cook was taken into custody by the police at the American restaurant.

No charge has been preferred against them by the police pending further investigation.

A bicycle the injured man was leading was smashed, while Wsetecka received bruises and other injuries. He says the machine bore the number 476-W.

RAIN SAVES CROP IN THE CORN BELT

Two Heavy Storms Save Grain in Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 11.—There was joy in the hearts of Iowa farmers today following two heavy rainstorms which swept the state last night and early today. The rainfall was general, raining from half an inch to nearly three inches at Des Moines.

Harry Wallace, Wesley Greene and M. J. Wragg, local experts say a few days more of drought would have cut the corn crop to fifty per cent. They now think the crop will be about 75 per cent of normal and it may be even better than this. Fruit which was on the verge of annihilation will be partially saved.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 11.—Good rains over most of the Nebraska corn belt Saturday, Sunday and Monday night have greatly improved the corn prospects in this state. Late corn will make a good yield and early corn will make 40 per cent of a crop.

MACON, Mo., Aug. 11.—Relief from the long drought in this section came Sunday morning with a rain which began at 9:30 o'clock and continued steadily for 24 hours.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 11.—High temperatures and conditions of drought still prevailed over Kansas and Oklahoma today and with no promise of relief in at least the next twenty-four hours, the crop situation continued to grow more serious.

CONTINUE CASE TO HUNT FOR BODY

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Judge Mahoney continued until Aug. 31 the hearing of the charges of murder of John Grady, chef of the Grand Pacific hotel, who was arrested following the mysterious disappearance of his wife, a former Cincinnati actress. Leconte of the University of Chicago, who is analyzing a charred remnant of what appears to be human bone, found in the furnace of the Grady home.

BATTLE-AX ROUTS BURGLAR

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 11.—An ancient battle axe and a fencing foil in the hands of two students of the University of Minnesota proved too much for a burglar in a frat house early today. He escaped without taking anything but not before he felt both weapons.

THREE KILLED IN INTERURBAN CRASH

Cross-Country Car Hits Milwaukee Street Car Near the City Limits

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Aug. 11.—Three persons were killed Sunday night when an interurban car of the Milwaukee Northern collided with a Milwaukee city trolley car near the northern city limits.

The cars slid 100 feet along the tracks before the interurban could be stopped.

William Hedrick was found lying back over his seat with his back broken. He was instantly killed by the impact.

William Wussow was found pinned under a heap of debris in the rear of the wrecked car. He died on the way to the hospital.

An unidentified man, supposed to be Otto Kline, lost his right arm and leg in the wreck. He died at 5:30 o'clock this morning.

Twelve members of the Sheboygan baseball team enroute to Milwaukee were on board the interurban that followed the car in the wreck and they aided in the work of rescue.

Motorman Harry Williams of the interurban claims that he applied the brakes but that he misjudged the distance of the trolley.

The third victim of the interurban collision Sunday night reported as Otto Kline, has been identified as Max Hadrick, a farm hand.

11 a. m.—News of rain in the west produced a quick rally in the market but stocks were supplied on the advance and trading continued comparatively dull and a shade under the last figures. 2 p. m.—There was no indication either of buying or selling that could be called significant and the market continued dull.

Chicago Grain Review CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Showers over portions of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and other drought stricken states caused an early break in the corn market that brought prices 1/2 to 1 cent under last week's close.

After the early decline the market encountered resting orders to buy that checked further downward movement. December corn made an advance of 1/4 c during the forenoon. Dispatches to local traders said that a large part of the corn belt was still in need of rain.

Trade in wheat was quiet. Prices were down a fraction at the start because of general rains throughout the northwest and liberal world's receipts, but made no further decline.

Oats started 1/4 to 3/4 c easier with corn, but the market halted at the opening prices when the decline in the corn pit was checked.

Provisions moved erratically. The prices were higher at the start with higher hog prices, declined when some liquidation was in progress and then recovered to the opening figures.

Corn led the other grains in a general upward movement in the afternoon and prices for nearly all tures were four to 1-2c higher at the close than at noon, the grain list generally closing at an advantage over the opening prices.

Provisions went a little higher after noon.

two hits, eight bases on balls and nary a strike-out, but he tightened up when necessary and Brooklyn stopped the Cardinals' miniature winning streak.Cutshaw played the hero, stopping every line drive that came anywhere near and pounding out a homer.The Athletics lead by eight games, following the Senators' walk away at Cleveland.Rube Marquard allowed nine hits but pulled a victory from the Reds.
Rube was the only Giant who failed to get a hit, while Cincinnati gave sixteen men opportunities to save

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11.—Twirler

erals down yesterday with three hits, is still the property of the Su-perbas now playing here. He de-cause of a disagreement over salary. Manager Dahlgren tried to coax Knetzer back during the series here, but the hurler says more money

SLAB DUEL 3 TO 2On a slow field the W. B. U. Athletes lost their first road game of the season to the Galesville team by the score of 3 to 2. Walters of the Athletics and Carroll of the Gales, engaged in a pitchers' battle and had things about even, but an error in the seventh inning allowing Galesville to push over two runs thereby winning the game. The W. B. U. scored first in the second inning, but Galesville came right back in their half with a run. The W. B. U. pushed over another run in the seventh which looked good enough to win. In their half of the seventh with two down and two on the bases, Eddie Klein rilled a slow one towards third, which the third baseman played too easy, the ball getting away from him and allowing both runners to score. Walters held the Gales to four hits, while the W. B. U. got five off Carroll. The revenge for Saturday's massacre by handing Superior two coats of calci-mine in the double header, the local boys winning both battles by identical scores, the count in both instances being 2 to 0. By virtue of the double victory the Colts made it two out of three from the northerners. Out of the six games played here so far, La Crosse has won and lost three, thus giving them a percentage of .500.Although Rube Schauer, the $10-000 recruit of the New York Giants, worked on the slab for the visitors in the first battle the locals were not at all intimidated and they counted the only tally they needed in the opening stanza. In all the Colts made seven hits off the high priced recruit and shut him out in what will probably be his last game in this league as he is to report to the world's champs on August 15. It was agreed to call the second game at 5 o'clock to allow Superior to catch a train and although it still lacked four minutes of that hour when six innings had been played, the umpire called off the proceedings.

Kramer is a Puzzle

Kramer, who has been playing left field for some time, went to the mound yesterday and his work was gilt edged. He proved a regular second McGinnity, for not content with twirling a three hit game in addition to downing Schauer, he came right back and went in for the second battle, keeping up his excellent slabbing. All told, Kramer twirled fifteen rounds of as good baseball as has ever been seen here with the result that Superior got but ten hits all day. Mike also did some fancy fielding, handling ten bouncers, many of them difficult, in the first contest.Due to the heavy rain of the night before, the playing field was muddy and the footing bad as a result of which fielding was made difficult.
In spite of this fact, however, both teams played fast ball.Holding Superior to three singles, two of which were scratches, and allowing but three men to reach second base, Kramer had the visitors completely tamed. They never had a chance to score so well he was working. He fanned four men and so perfect was his control that nary a pass did he issue.On the other hand Schauer was found for seven hits including a two cushion shot by Thomas. Two hits were bunched in the first and third rounds and this was what spelled defeat. Schauer breezed seven locals and he walked one batter but this cut no figure in the result.In the opening frame Curtis got to first on Thomas' error and he was sacrificed to second where he was stranded. The Colts were more successful in their first when they really won the game. Thomas started by bounding a slow one down the third base line for a hit because of the heavy field. Dreis sacrificed neatly and De Rucha poked a grounder to Curtis, advancing Thomas to third. Joe Safford proved a good man in the pinch by eaking a terrific liner over Schauer to center, scoring Thomas.Kramer himself scored the second run and gave himself a good lead to work on by leading off in the third with a hit down the third base line.
Thomas was retired on strikes and Dreis grounded out, but Mike pilfered second, from where he counted easily on De Rucha's safe swat to center. This was all the scoring done, but it was enough the way Kramer was twirling.

Carl Morris.

Carl Morris, Oklahoma's giant boxer, still retains the impression that he's the most dangerous white hope that is running around loose.
He believes that with good management and better handling than he has ever had before he will easily prove his supremacy over Gunboat Smith, Arthur Pelky and Jess Willard.iron man in the second battle but he was unequal to the task and he was handed the same coat of whitewash as was his predecessor. The hits were evenly divided in this game but Kramer was at his best in the pinches and he worked himself out of several bad holes in fine style.The locals did not waste any time in winning the second game. In the second round Lizzette got a life on Dunne's error and he went to second on a passed ball. Grogan popped out but Sutton was the hero of the hour with a two bagger to center, sending Lizzette in. Sutton moved to third on Kramer's bouncer and counted on Thomas' infield hit. Superior had chances in the third and fourth but Kramer tightened up and would not allow the necessary hits to score.

BOSTON MANAGERMILWAUKEE, Aug. 11.—George McBride, shortstop of the Washington team, is to succeed Carrigan as manager of the Boston Red Sox next season, according to information received in Milwaukee from members of McBride's family.
McAleer and Griffith, according to this report have framed up an elaborate deal. McBride, Ainsmith and Milan of the Senators are to go to Boston in exchange for Speaker, Carrigan and an outfielder. Milwaukee friends of McBride pointed out today that the Washington shortstop and McAleer are very friendly and that McBride stops at McAleer's home when the Senators are in Bos-

FOR LOCAL TEAMPresident Conrad of the local baseball club left last evening for St. Paul, where he announced that he was going to look for some pitchers to send here to bolster up the twirlhimself as dissatisfied with the work of the slab material which he has and he said yesterday that he expects to send two good hurlers here within a few days."Any team will look bad when the pitchers are not working right," said Mr. Conrad, "and that has been our principal difficulty. With better work on the slab our team will do better."Grand Forks is scheduled to open
